VINIFICATION

Vermentino is one of the few white grapes that perfectly acclimated to the Mediterranean Tuscany. It loves sea breezes and sunlight and in return provides opulent flavour and radiant freshness. At the arrival to the cellar, the grapes are de-stemmed and crushed. Grapes are then pressed and fermented at low temperatures to obtain a wine with a strong personality. Afterwards, the wine doesn't undertake any further aging in order to keep its characteristic freshness and flowery notes. The last step is tangential filtration prior bottling.
